

KCD Wins King County 2015 Green Globe Award

On Monday, April 20, Dow Constantine, King County Executive, presented King Conservation District with the 2015 Green Globe Award for "Leadership in Helping Landowners Steward Natural Resources."

At the award ceremony, KiroTV News Anchor/Report, Penny LaGate asked the audience to "imagine the world if every landowner, public and private, worked together to steward their natural resources so that collectively abundant local food, healthy rural and urban forests, and fresh clean water would be fundamental assets for all to share and enjoy." That is the world that KCD works to ensure through educational and technical assistance, cost share programs and jurisdictional grants to support natural resource best management practices across King County.

Presenter King County Executive, Dow Constantine, Sara Hemphill, KCD Executive Director, accompanied KCD Supervisors Bill Knutsen and Dick Ryon accept the award.

In 2014, KCD created several new programs intended to address emerging natural resource issues and respond to needs in urban areas within the County.
